The Third Eye

Synopsis

T. Lobsang Rampa was preordained to be a Tibetan priest, a sign from the stars that could not be ignored. When he left his wealthy home to enter the monastery, his heart was filled with trepidation, with only a slight knowledge of the rigorous spiritual training and physical ordeal that awaited him . . . This is his story, a hauntingly beautiful and deeply inspiring journey of awakening within Chakpori Lamasery, the temple of Tibetan medicine. It is a moving tale of passage through the mystic arts of astral projection, crystal gazing, aura deciphering, meditation, and more, a spiritual guide of enlightenment and discovery through the opening of the all-powerful, the all-knowing . . .

Customer Reviews

You are reading this and you read the other reviews but this will suffice your curiosity. Neither the reviewers that support Lobsang's message (and here is a first hint: HIS message NOT him is what counts) such as I or the ones that fully reject him AND his message have tried to do, search, explore, sense and perceive what his books TALK ABOUT. Most people that have been to Tibet believe the average Lama is capable of performing the things talked about in the book. WRONG! WRONG! AND WRONG! You will need to read another 'hoax' author that interestingly enough, clearly states that very, very, very few humans are able to perform such things. Carlos Castaneda is his name and he finds his 'Lobsang', his personal guru in the middle of the desert, just a poor indian on a dusty bus stop... but this was not ordinary native indian (read: no ordinary human being).

Only difference between Castañeda and Lobsang? The first comes from native-american tradition and the second comes from asian, eastern tradition but remarkably, both say the same things which is the following: there is a way for average people to 'disconnect' from the physical world/reality at will, this in turn will allow such being (remember, a disconnected mind from the body is no longer a human being but just a being) to EXPERIENCE 'impossible' things in this and other 'realities'. After reading two 'hoaxes' such as Rampa and Castañeda, I suggest you read a third author, this one has not been called a 'hoax' because unlike the other two authors, he understands that our western way of looking at life is intrinsically linked to science nowadays, meaning, we must provide an EMPIRICAL way to experience what those books talk about.
